In 1992, Venerable Huili embarked on a journey to Africa. He established the first "Amitofo Care Center" (ACC) in Malawi during 2004, dedicated to caring for African vulnerable children and where more than 85% of world's HIV-positive children live. Today, many years later, the founder continues with his compassionate practice of Buddhism in Africa traveling to all corners of Africa, and helping countless precious young lives. Nowadays, he is known as the "African monk" or "Monk dad" in the eyes of thousands of children.

-Namibia ACC Scout Troop Networking Event-

The three-day global Scout online conference on October 16 to 18 will connect the Scouts around the world. In order to let the little cubs become Scouts next year and learn and participate in the Jamboree, the adults that are new to technology have also tried their best to participate in the setup. Chatting with partners around the world in English and Chinese to exchange experience, in the Chinese chat room, we attracted the attention of Chinese partners, Chinese in Africa also joined the exchange, we are the first group to enter the virtual room!

Today during Scouting time, our team leader Yu, in addition to arranging the little wolves to review the phone book and the scout flag retracting and raising, also invited the little wolves to the meeting area, and directly projected the page of Jamboree on the wall. The little wolves understand the meaning of connecting and communicating, and experience the fun of sharing together. Although the little wolves are still unfamiliar with technology, they are very curious and eager to interact with friends scattered around the world. I am very happy that the little wolves are broadening their horizons and stepping forward. One small step can open doors of possibilities and we look forward to getting more information about our technology resources in the future, so that the global village is not separated because of distance or when a pandemic strikes.

Mozambique ACC Teachers' Appreciation Day

In the history of Chinese education, Confucius symbolizes the model of "Teachers will teach no matter how privileged and different you are with the materials they have"; it is a festival to thank teachers. "Teacher's Day" set by different countries vary, while World Teachers' Day is celebrated on October 5.

In Mozambique, it is celebrated on October 15, the children also look forward of this day. The hand-made gifts and cards crafted by the children are prepared in advance so it will give everyone a feeling of working with others and more thought can be put into creation.

The grace from parents, teachers, and everyone must not be forgotten. On holidays, teachers will dress nicely to go to school as if it was a normal working day to celebrate with the children.
